

Tiverton aviation consultancy expands into new offices

December 6, 2017, Tiverton – Tiverton-based aviation fuel consultancy eJet International has taken new offices in the town after recording 20% growth this year.

eJet has been based in Tiverton for over 10 years, and directors John Pitts and Katherine Laing, who both live locally, remain committed to the town – deciding to remain in the area when it came to looking at potential new offices.

With 18 years of business under its belt, eJet has worked at some of the world's busiest airports providing expertise in the fuelling of aircraft. The company has since expanded its services, offering operational as well as engineering support, including project management, consultancy and procurement.

John Pitts, eJet Managing Director, said: "This is an exciting time for us. We have seen continued growth and are getting our teeth into some meaty projects, which has allowed us to harness our full skill set and services. We have also recently been awarded ISO9001, an internationally-recognised quality standard which underpins our service.

"The team and I have clocked-up almost 100,000 air miles this year alone, visiting countries near and far, but there is no better feeling than touching down in Devon. Tiverton has excellent transport links and is an ideal base for us – there's certainly no place like home!

"As we approach the festive season, the office move and securing the ISO9001 have allowed us to take stock and reflect on what we have achieved – it really is an early Christmas present for us all."

The team has contributed to some of the latest developments in aviation fuel operations at major airports across the globe. With increasing international pressure to lower CO₂ emissions, eJet has been at the forefront of championing the wider use of renewable fuels, a topic they feel passionately about.

eJet secured the ISO9001 Quality Management System accreditation following a rigorous audit process and quality checks. The ISO is a gold standard that shows eJet strives to ensure its products and services meet customers' requirements and that quality is consistently improved.

The company is currently working on various projects in Singapore, Luxembourg and Dublin, and is also developing a number of specialist software products.

Find out more about eJet at www.ejetinternational.com or on (+44) (0) 203 2893 747.

eJet International is a global aviation fuel specialist based in Tiverton, providing expertise in aviation fuel facilities to airports, airport fuel operators and associated organisations.

In nearly 20 years the firm has worked on many of the most high-profile developments in airport fuel operations, at some of the busiest airports across the world, from Dublin to Hong Kong.

www.ejetinternational.com

Twitter: @ejeta1

LinkedIn: eJet

